Sample Work Based Learning Project:

The LEAP Elder Story Project is an initiative intended to connect blind and visually impaired youth with older Americans in their community through the power of first-person true narrative. The goal of the project is to enhance written and oral communication skills among the youth and increase connectedness across generations.

Students will learn important work skills such as teleworking; maintaining a detailed and accurate timesheet for independent work; appropriate attire and set-up for virtual work platforms, such as Zoom or Google HangOut. Students will practice setting and reaching goals; communicating with partners and consultants; necessary organizational skills; and using accommodations.
