Explore the rich world of food narrative writing — where personal memory, family history, and cultural tradition meet the practical craft of writing a recipe. Students will uncover the story behind a favorite dish, whether it's their own or one you gather by interviewing someone else about the meal that matters to them. Through research, interviews, and peer collaboration with accountability partners, they'll develop a piece that blends narrative and instruction while practicing transferable workplace writing skills.

Student technology skills will be gauged at the start of the program using LEAP's new Technology Readiness Tool.
